I was born in Hertfordshire and worked for the NHS whilst raising my family. I attended university as a mature student to study Philosophy and Spanish.

I then relocated to Devon 10 years ago after many years of visiting this area because every time I returned to Hertfordshire it just felt like the wrong way around! I strongly believe in comprehensive education and wanted my children to experience attending a school in their neighbourhood. My interest in education led to employment at Kingsbridge Community College and I then retrained at Plymouth University to be a Secondary English Teacher.

As life in Devon so often does, things changed and for the last 7 years I have been self-employed. I now happily run a garden reclamation business with my partner and work part time hours at Cocoa Boutique in Kingsbridge.

Having shared my home with four young adults at various times who have all attended Kingsbridge Community College, I am especially keen on helping foster opportunities for future generations to feel the town can provide them with a prosperous, secure, and happy life.

Kingsbridge is a vivacious town serviced and lived in by hard working people and through my role as a Councillor at Kingsbridge Town Council, I want to help the area remain beautiful but practical for its residents.
